

Castlebank has changed over the last few years since Lanark Community Development Trust took it on

Gateway rebuilt

Derelict sawmill Buildings restored

Old tennis court dump is now a productive horticulture centre

The Terraced Gardens had been closed off for years and were totally overgrown. We cleared them all and replanted them

The area where the greenhouses once stood had reverted to jungle. We cleared it and laid it out as the Wallace Rose Garden

The area near the sawmill buildings was rough scrub. This has now been beautifully landscaped with a patio seating area, a rock garden and lovely herbaceous beds.

What a transformation!

The Bog Garden

The Bog Garden is situated where the old Curling Pond once was. This had been filled in and was left as a boggy stretch of grass. This has now been transformed into a wildflower meadow with a small biodiversity pond.

The bridge and Grotto have been repaired and a mural painted in the grotto with ideas from local children.

Prince Charles visited and admired the wildflower meadow
